President's Message

The new 2007-2008 term of the East Melbourne Group (EMG) Committee has commenced with the inclusion of four new committee members. Our continuing members together with our newly elected members are looking forward to a year of challenges as we tackle key issues concerning heritage and planning, amenity enhancement and community networking.

Convenors of the various EMG Sub-committees will continue to manage the working groups and I encourage EMG members with an interest in being involved in these groups to contact the Convenors or our administrator Carmel Bourke for further details. If you would like to become involved in the community affairs of East Melbourne, please feel free to contact the EMG office.

East Melbourne Festa

East Melbourne's big community day in Powlett Reserve in March was a wonderful success. Residents and their families, traders and visitors turned out in droves at the East Melbourne Festa. The success of the day would not have been possible without the combined support of our local council, local sponsors and the wonderful managerial skills of one local resident, Faye Humphris.

Congratulations must go to Faye and the members of the Festa Committee of Management, for coordinating this enormous project. Seeing the numbers of children enjoying all the delights of the day made the hard work of the dozens of volunteers worthwhile.

Council has indicated it would like to see the Festa become an annual event. This is good news for the community. Although we are surrounded by an annual calendar of major events of national, if not, international standing, it is equally important for city edge communities to have their own local events. Low key and down to earth as they may seem, it is a rare opportunity for the broader community to congregate together in one of our beautiful parks.

The community's local residents association, the EMG, will be doing all it can to encourage Council to provide adequate funding for this wonderful community day.

Minister sanctions East Melbourne's high-rises

After 6 years of procedural assessment, the Minister has over-ruled the Planning Panels recommendations and put his own stamp on the Amendment C93.

In a shock move, Minister Madden has chosen to ignore a set of height provision recommended by Panels Victoria and has instead assured the future dominance of the high-rise building in heritage East Melbourne.

What appeared to be a visionary set of height provisions that would enhance the heritage character of East Melbourne, the Planning Minister has chosen to go it alone by favouring the perpetuation of high-rise dominance in East Melbourne.

The new Amendment C93 that has been signed-off by Minister Madden recently is significantly different to the Amendment that was recommended by the Planning Panel in May 2005, and the exhibited Amendment by the City of Melbourne which was supported by the East Melbourne Group.

The only difference left to resolve in the Panels Report was whether height limits would be made mandatory or discretionary. The recommended heights were sensible and set a visionary path for the future protection of heritage East Melbourne.

The saga began when the local community in East Melbourne became alarmed at the number of high-rise proposals during the past six years. The existing planning rules were in a mess and full of anomalies.

Heritage sites either had excessive height limits hanging over them or no limit at all. The ever-growing wall of high-rises along Wellington Parade had to be regulated to stem the impact on heritage buildings in neighboring streets

This prompted the City of Melbourne to set in motion new planning rules for Clarendon Street (between Albert Street and Wellington Parade) and Wellington Parade (between Clarendon Street and Simpson Street).

The local residents association, the East Melbourne Group had earlier brought to a halt two 22 and 19 storey towers behind the Art Deco Freemasons hospital. EMG then went in to battle a run of different high-rise proposals on the site of the old MCG Hotel and alongside historic Mosspennock House in Clarendon Street.

Although successful in its fight to stem the wave of permit applications, EMG believed new planning rules was the key to overcoming the threat to the character and the future of historic East Melbourne. It welcomed the City of Melbourne's review and exhibition of the Amendment C93 draft.

Having come to the end of this lengthy and tedious project, the EMG is now asking what was the point of going through the amendment process of reviews, complex submissions, amendment exhibitions, and a hearing before the independent panel, when at the end of the day the Minister decides, with the stroke of his pen, to do his own thing.

Despite some disappointments, the EMG acknowledges that there has been some very good outcomes. Heritage sites such as Bishopscourt, Mosspennock, Freemasons and Trinity now have sensible height limits.

Frank and Ruby Coppens have just returned from an enlightening experience.

A different view of China

We started our tour with some trepidation. The promotion said 'an adventure using weird and wonderful transport'. This translated to mean – public buses, overnight trains, bicycles, riverboats, rickshaws and lots of walking.

In a population of 1.29 billion, this was certainly a great way to meet the locals who were as interested in us as we were in them. Our guide explained that in China, asking personal questions was not considered rude, but simply showing genuine interest in visitors.

The culture shock was expected but the blatant disregard for traffic lights astounded us, as did the manual labour on thousands of building sites.

We visited all the usual tourist spots: The Great Wall, Terracotta Warriors, Forbidden City etc, but also experienced the lives of country folk. The happy children of local farmers on the slopes of Mount Emei welcomed us into their primary school as honoured guests.

We rode bicycles through villages and rice paddies. We watched farmers drive ox and ploughs with one hand while using a mobile phone with the other.

Our local guides invited us into their homes to show what they produced and cooked for us. Donkey stew, stuffed garden snails, whole chicken feet, water lily roots are just a few of the 'delicacies' we tasted.

In the monasteries high up in the rain forests we woke to the 4.30am chanting of monks which we found very calming. But lights out at 10pm was a shock.

China is fast becoming westernized with the old Hutongs and traditional housing being replaced by modern skyscrapers and freeways. So, how glad we were to have seen some of the old China.

AFL eyes off Yarra Park

A proposal to take over a large section of Yarra Park for Grand Final Day has been rejected by Council.

The Australian Football League wanted to expand its corporate entertainment arm into Yarra Park with a long term plan to 'create an ALF Village around the MCG'.

The area targeted for this years Grand Final was a large triangle of open parkland known as Paddock 8 which was to be fenced off to the public for consecutive 35 days to erect and then dismantle a tent village for corporate entertainment.

Mega marquees were to provide bar and dining facilities for 4300 guests, paying $1995.00 per head while being looked after by 600 staff members.

Members of the local community and the East Melbourne Group, were outraged that the proposal only became public knowledge through a series of commercials aired on Channel 7 last month.

Fiona Hinrichsen, president of the East Melbourne Group says the $600 million redevelopment of the MCG provides adequate opportunities for corporate entertainment on Grand Final Day.

"It is a concern if the sports industry thinks it can come in and take over a large section of Yarra Park with its cranes and forklift trucks while fencing out the general public for such an extensive length of time," said Fiona.

Brian Chaplin, Convenor of EMG Parks and Gardens Sub-committee supports the East Melbourne Community preference for Yarra Park to be reserved as a picnic area for patrons and visitors.

"Grand Final Day is a wonderful festive day and the City of Melbourne should be making every effort to allow passionate footy fans who religiously queue up for their seats to have the park for their enjoyment. It should be the place where families can set up their barbeques and picnic lunches and kick the footy around," Brian said. "Cordoning off a large section of the park for exclusive use of big corporate companies goes against the fundamental ideology of what a public park is all about".

The East Melbourne News has been told that the Environment Committee, chaired by Councillor Brindley received an avalanche of letters from the general public objecting to the proposal.

Gipps Street demolition causes upset

Unexpected demolition works at the rear of a house in Gipps Street has caused some concern amongst neighbours. Once the home of the late Johnny Ladd, residents became upset to see the disposal of a 130 year cherry tree where they believed the TV actors ashes had been scattered, following his death early last year. Council enforcement officers have ordered the works to cease until an appropriate permit application has been filed and processed.

Becton at Eastside under construction again

Construction on the remaining triangle of vacant land alongside Jolimont railway yards has begun. This will be the final stage of the Becton residential project that commenced in 1993. At the eastern section of the vacant site, a series of low-rise town houses will be built comprising 27 one and two bedroom dwellings along the railway line and 15 three storey townhouses along Wellington Parade South. At the Spring Street end of the wedge, a 19 storey high-rise apartment tower will be constructed.

Residential conversion for the former East Melbourne Hotel

Works are in full swing on the corner of Hoddle Street and Hotham Street. What was once a local watering hole, the old East Melbourne pub is now being converted into residential apartments. Although another storey is being added to the roof line, the high parapet in place restricts the dominance of the addition. Eight two and three bedroom apartments are proposed with a convenience cafe on the corner.

Berry Street residents face two residential developments

Residents are gearing up for a lengthy period of construction activity as developers commence work at both ends of the street. At the southern end, the Becton Property Group is about to commence demolition in preparation for the construction of eight townhouses which will take about 10-12 months to build. At the other end of Berry Street, where two three storey townhouses will be constructed, residents have already experienced trucks entering this one-way street from the wrong direction. Residents say this irresponsible action has the potential for serious consequences as children in particular, are not looking for traffic approaching the wrong way. The EMG has notified the Victorian Police -Traffic Division about the matter.

East Melbourne's Festa

A wonderful day of community spirit was clearly evident on an autumn Sunday, March 25 in Powlett Reserve.

After years of planning by the Festa Committee of Management, Faye Humphris (Chair), and her team were overwhelmed by the high attendances on the day.

To the delight of the crowd, children danced to the sounds of the marvellous Police Show Band while community groups worked feverishly in their food stalls attempting to feed the multitudes of people who turned up on the day.

Throughout the day, Jeff Richardson was kept busy running the full program of entertainment. Politicians and councillors were there and Ted Baillieu, State Opposition Leader, even joined in with the Sing Australia choir.

Dogs turned up in their droves for the 'Big Parade' and our local school students from St John's showed their musical talents in concert.

However, the success of the day would not have been possible without essential funding from the City of Melbourne and the management support of 'Events Melbourne'.

During the opening, Faye Humphris thanked Events Melbourne officers Merlyn Hutchinson and Jacqui O'Toole for all their hard work. Cr Peter Clarke officially opened the Festa and formally acknowledged all the local groups who had made the effort to participate with such community spirit.

Organizers also acknowledged the generous support of local traders and businesses, in particular Dingle Partners, National Bank, Laundry Mutt and Toucan Digital Display Solutions.

Open for business IN EAST MELBOURNE

Just over a year ago Tulay and her business partner opened the small cafe "Zetost" in Wellington Parade. The name "Zetost" means "The Toast" in English.

Good coffee can be enjoyed with freshly made pastries of Turkish and modern Australian influence. Freshly squeezed juices, homemade soups and toasted delights are just some of the lunch items on the menu. Look out for the Turkish specialty called "Borek", a very light pastry filled with mince meat and potato. There is also a vegetarian version with cheese.

Another specialty of "Zetost" is the variety of homemade Turkish-style dips. A platter of dips and delicious breads is ideal for after work-drinks or social gatherings with friends. And Tulay is always happy to prepare platters of sandwiches for those long working lunches. Telephone: 9416 2060

Further along Wellington Parade near Hoddle Street, "Quest East Melbourne" will be opening its doors for the first time.

This 40-room boutique hotel will cater for the corporate and traveller market. Extensive refurbishment has transformed this 'art deco' building into comfortable and stylish accommodation.

Manager and local resident of East Melbourne, Natasha McNamara, is looking forward to this exciting venture and will be very happy to assist all inquiries about "Quest East Melbourne" and its new facilities. Telephone: 9413 0000 Moving around the corner into Hoddle Street, East Melbourne now has its own vet. Being a community of pet lovers, veterinarian Bill Ryan and his team have been kept busy since open the surgery doors 3 months ago. "All Creatures" is located on Hoddle Street between Grey Street and Albert Street. Telephone: 9415 8288.

Tributes to Longstanding Members

At the East Melbourne Group's 2007 Annual General Meeting, Fiona Hinrichsen, President, presented Life Membership Certificates to two former committee officers who made significant contributions to the 'Group' in the early 1950s.

Nada Brozel (formerly Marsden) was a founding member of the EMG and appointed secretary in 1956 and 1959 and then went on to become treasurer for a number of years.

Bruce McBrien, also a founding member, was Vice-president from 1959 until 1963.

In addition to these presentations, members who have had a continuing association with the 'Group' for 50, 40 or 30 years were officially acknowledged for their long standing support. Certificates were presented to Miss Jean Conochie, 53 years and founding member; Miss Una Allen, 51 years; Mrs Diane Romney, 42 years; Mr John Samson and Mrs Nerida Samson, 53 years and founding members; Drs Paul and Columba Steedman, 47 years; and Michael and Pam Wilson, members for 42 years.

Musical activities come to the Library

Melissa Dods is teaching Moving Into Music for toddlers and pre-schoolers at East Melbourne Library and Community Centre. Charities at Tax Time

Each year charities depend on your generosity and traditionally you will hear from charities that you support at Christmas and also in June when you are sorting out your tax.

Tips for making your donation work:

If you want a tax deduction, ensure the charity has Deductible Gift status. This means that your receipt will have their ABN etc and will be accepted as an official receipt. All donations over $2 are deductible, so it is a good idea to keep the years supply of receipts in a special place. You will be surprised how quickly this adds up.

Charity begins at home and several organizations close to East Melbourne are running events in the next few months.

News in brief

Organic store to open at Tribeca

A new food store will open next month at Tribeca in the space that once occupied the former restaurant and bar, Eastside Cellars.

Rumor has it that it will be known as "Organic Tribeca" and set up by IGA stores. It is also expected that a new restaurant and bar will occupy the old cellar next door.

Sounds of old England at Cooks' Cottage

Cooks' Cottage in the Fitzroy Gardens, historic home of the parents of James Cook, has been enhanced with 'sound-scape', or background noise.

Visitors can now experience domestic conversations and noises of the by-gone era of the Cook family.

And, you can even become a cottage resident by putting your head through one of the wooden cut-outs that have been recently installed in the garden.

George Street Café targeted

Burglars have targeted the George Street Café in a smash and grab raid during closing hours. Entering via the main door in George Street after breaking the glass panel, thieves made off with the cash register.

Fortunately, the corner entrance allowed patrons to enter the premise until the damaged door was replaced.

Midsummer Festival moving out of the Treasury Gardens

At the April Environment Committee, Council decided that the Treasury Gardens is not a suitable venue for the annual Midsummer Festival and that it should be staged in either Alexander Gardens or Birrarung Marr.

The Committee also decided that the heritage listed gardens ought to be re-categorized from high impact to medium impact and that the maximum number of events per year be reduced.

New Roundabouts still waiting for funding

It looks as though deteriorating roundabouts in East Melbourne have missed out again on funding in the 2007-2008 Budget.

Council informed the EMG at the recent Local Forum in April that 'it was highly unlikely that funds will be allocated in Council's 2007/2008 Capital Works program for upgrading roundabouts in East Melbourne'.

Celebrating 150 years

Clarendon Terrace remembers its close shave with the wreckers ball in 1977 - 30 years ago.

In Clarendon Street, Clarendon Terrace, one of East Melbourne's most majestic buildings will be celebrating the 150th anniversary of its life. Featured on the front cover is the unusual façade with a portico of 4 impressive classical columns of the Corinthian order.

Built in 1857 for Charles Lister, a wine merchant, it was one of the first dwellings to go up in Clarendon Street. Architect Osgood Pritchard also designed 206 Clarendon Street next door, once the home of Sir Redmond Barry.

It is hard to believe that in 1977 a permit was issued for the demolition of 'Clarendon Terrace'. This was despite being classified by the National Trust as early as 1958 and placed on the State's Historic Buildings Register.

Local residents and the National Trust fought a long hard battle to save the building and won. The National Trust then purchased the building with financial help from the Victorian Government.

Under a long-term lease with the National Trust, the Menzies Foundation agreed to pay the main cost of restoration and repair and equip, furnish and maintain the building.

The lower floor accommodates administrative offices whilst the upper floor has been developed into meeting rooms for the Foundation and for hire to outside organizations.

The Foundation is the principal memorial created by the Sir Robert Menzies Memorial Trust, itself established in honour of Sir Robert who was Prime Minister from 1939-1941 and again from 1949-1966 and who died in 1978.

Since 1982, when the restored building was officially opened, the work of the Foundation has continued at Clarendon Terrace, funding and sponsoring scholarships for higher education in medical research, allied health science, law and engineering.

Sandra MacKenzie said the Menzies Foundation is looking forward to sharing the 150th Anniversary of Clarendon Terrace with the local community.
